Activity Idea - Tiny Tots Just within their reach....

Placing objects just within baby's grasp, encourages them to reach out for it. It helps develop hand eye co-ordination skills and stimulates curiosity.

Did you know...

Eye contact is a stimulant, and babies right from birth will be looking for eye contact. Soon this hunger for eye contact turns into interest in what faces do. One of the vital things faces do is to express feelings.

Activity Idea - Older Explorers Cardboard box fun

With a little imagination a cardboard box can be turned into many things. Mark out some tracks or roadways. Pop in some trains and anything you might have to add scenery. Leave crayons/pencils for your little one as this is an ideal opportunity for them to make marks while playing.

Discovery time

Sounds like...a train station!

What can you find around the home to replicate the noises heard at the train station?

Use your phone to record you or your child saying 'mind the gap' or 'tickets please' and play back.
